WellWishers is an Australian based aid programme raising money to supply water wells to villages in northern Ethiopia. 95% of all funds goes directly to the provision of fresh water wells.

In the Tigray Province of Northern Ethiopia, nearly 20% of children die before age 5, through water-borne diseases. Women and young girls collect polluted water for an average of 3 hours every day.

A well costs just $6,000 and will improve the lives of up to 500 people forever. It will increase the life expectancy of these people by up to 10 years and allows these young girls, once free of the burden of collecting water, to gain an education.

By attending this fundraising dinner, you are contributing to building a water well in one of these rural villages in Ethiopia.
